

Sample Answer – About 1 minute

One reason they may have chosen these different ways of learning is that they suit different needs. Learning in a group has several advantages, as students can exchange ideas, learn from each other and work through difficulties together. What's more, being surrounded by other learners can keep you motivated and make the experience more enjoyable.

By contrast, studying independently allows you to work at your own pace and focus on your individual needs. It can be particularly effective for people who need a quiet environment to concentrate or who prefer to manage their own time.

Partner's Question

Which of these ways of learning would you find easier?

I'd probably choose studying on my own, mainly because I can concentrate better. That said, group learning can be extremely useful when you want to gain a different perspective or discuss challenging ideas.

Useful Vocabulary in Context

exchange ideas

Group projects give students the chance to exchange ideas and learn from one another.

work through difficulties

Talking to someone can help you work through difficulties instead of giving up.

keep someone motivated

Setting small goals can keep you motivated when you are learning a new skill.

work at your own pace

Online courses allow learners to work at their own pace without feeling under pressure.

focus on your individual needs

Private lessons can be useful because the teacher can focus on your individual needs.

manage your own time

Working from home requires you to manage your own time effectively.

gain a different perspective

Discussing a problem with other people can help you gain a different perspective.

That said, ...

Living in a big city can be stressful. That said, it offers plenty of opportunities.